Letters Are Best Christmas Present for Your Editor

Editor The Star: I wish I could write and express myself as well as you do. You treat the subject matter so well that even I, a fourth-grader from a country crossroads in Mississippi county, can understand.

Your thoughts go back with a thorough understanding to the time when we knew little about (road) bond issues and the financing of them (Reference is to this column's anti-bond editorial of Nov. 20, which was reprinted state-wide by the Arkansas Democrat).

We paid and paid and finally we found out why the big boys like bond issues so well. So may I hope you again will hit the columns of our Little Rock papers with one of your forceful pieces. They are really frank and candid—something we are in dire need of on this ugly highway bond issue question. May I have the pleasure of wishing you a merry Christmas? Sincerely,

J. B. BAILEY

Ed. Note: The highway bond proposal is by this time virtually a dead duck. Other editors were equally versatile in scrambling this ill-starred venture.

Editor The Star: This type of letter is strictly a first with me, but your editorial on the Space Program (Star of Dec. 20) is, in my opinion, outstanding.

It expresses my views completely but in a clearer and more concise manner. The only regret that I have about the Space Program is that I could not go with the astronauts to the moon.

I am sending my copy of your masterpiece to a young friend of mine in Houston, Kieth McClung, an engineer for North American Aircraft and who holds a high level position in the Space Program. He is a kinsman of Mrs. J. W. Franks of this city. I had occasion to visit with him in July of 1971. He gave me a guided tour of the Space Center.

I can remember the first time I drove my dad's Model A over 40 miles an hour. That Man could go faster than that seemed impossible—but he has!

My kindest personal regards and wishes for a healthy, happy New Year. Most sincerely yours,

Frankly, an editor feels more comfortable with blasting than he does with praise. But I do thank my correspondents.

However, I would caution The Star's younger readers against the mistake of thinking good writers are born—not made. An aptitude for language helps, but without application you won't go far.

Writing begins with reading, acquiring a knowledge of words and their exact meaning—and noting how they are arranged to emphasize a particular meaning. We call this syntax.

About words: In 1920 I interviewed the great American novelist Booth Tarkington for the Wilkes-Barre (Pa.) Record, where I started as a cub reporter between school years. The author made an astonishing admission. He said if he had his school years to do over he would have paid close attention to the sources from which our English words are derived—"the warp and woof of language," as he described. I got the message. Thereafter every time I had to consult a dictionary for spelling I also checked the word for its foreign origin—Latin, Greek, French, etc.

But how words are put together for effective writing is an equal chore. Tarkington put it in a nutshell when he told me,

"The problem of writing is to get the ink out of it"—meaning, your message comes through loud and clear.

But in the beginning you find words obstruct rather than help in putting across an idea. You may learn the musical scales but you're not going anywhere until you acquire rhythm—which in language we call syntax. And this takes time.

I started writing newspaper editorials at El Dorado in 1923-24. But the fact is I threw away two for every one I felt was coherent enough to print. Finally I discovered the exact paragraph where a piece started to go sour, and was able to rewrite the balance correctly.

Eventually a writer learns to organize his material so it floats on top of the words instead of bulldozing through them. That is what Tarkington meant when he said: "The problem of writing is to get the ink out of it."

Air strikes resume after bombing halt

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. B52 bombers and fighter-bombers resumed attacks on the Hanoi and Haiphong areas of North Vietnam today after a 36-hour bombing halt for Christmas, the U.S. Command announced.

The Command also reported that American air strikes had been resumed across South Vietnam at dusk Monday following a 24-hour cease-fire.

The Command made no comment on air operations in Laos, but other U.S. officials said they had continued through Christmas with no apparent letup.

The Command did not explain why the bombing halt in the North lasted longer than the cease-fire in the South. Nor would it say whether the attack was resumed on the massive scale employed last week, when the raids were the heaviest of the war.

U.S. officials had indicated earlier that the bombing halt over North Vietnam had been planned for 24 hours and had been extended on an hour-to-hour basis while President Nixon awaited some sign from Hanoi that it was ready to agree to his peace terms.

A statement by Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin touched off speculation that he might have been in touch with Nixon. Tass, the Soviet news agency, reported that Kosygin told Ambassador Vo Thuc Dong of North Vietnam that the Soviet government expects immediate termination of the bombing and signing of a cease-fire agreement. But observers in Moscow interpreted Kosygin's remarks as an expression of desire rather than a prediction.

The roadblock to a peace agreement has been the U.S. demand that Hanoi recognize two separate states in Vietnam, retreating from the concept of unification promised in the 1964 Geneva Agreement that ended the French Indochina War.

The U.S. Command refused all comment on the bombing cessation, which other officials said began before midnight Sunday as part of the allied cease-fire for Christmas.

Radio Hanoi has reported no air attacks after Sunday night but said today that U.S. B52 bombers destroyed the Bac Thai provincial hospital and sanatorium north of Hanoi in "concentrated" bombing raids on Christmas Eve.

The broadcast claimed the towns of Thai Nguyen, Ha Bac and Lang Son also were bombed on Dec. 24, and the raiders "killed and wounded a great many civilians, including Catholic people who were celebrating Christmas services." Lang Son is just below the Chinese border.

Truman dead

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

KANSAS CITY AP — Harry S. Truman died today, conquered finally by the infirmities of age.

The nation's 33rd president died at 8:50 a.m. EST. His wife and daughter were notified at their home.

The hospital attributed death to the "complexity of organic failures causing a collapse of the cardio-vascular system."

Truman entered the hospital three weeks ago today and had been in a coma since early Saturday.

As his condition worsened Christmas Day, Truman's daughter, Margaret Truman Daniel, returned from her home in New York. She saw him for about 20 minutes Monday night.

Death came quietly to the former president. Dr. Wallace Graham, his physician from the White House days, was at his side.

A family spokesman, Randall Jessee, said the 87-year-old Mrs. Truman stood up well to the announcement.

The former chief executive will lie in state Thursday in the rotunda of the library that houses the memorabilia of the Truman presidency, and services will be held there on Friday.

Truman had been vice president for only 82 days in the closing days of World War II, when he became president on the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

During his eight years in the world's most powerful post, Truman set the United States against global communism, aiding countries that were threatened by the threat of Russian domination.

One of the most momentous acts of his presidency was to order the dropping of the atomic bomb on Hiroshima.

He returned to the solitude of the family home in Independence, spending the first decade after leaving the White House by lecturing on college campuses.

He was 60 years old when he became president and was 69 when he left the capital in January 1963.

His death leaves Lyndon B. Johnson as the nation's only living former president. As Truman took office, the Soviet Union already was breaking agreements that had been reached only months before at Yalta in a meeting of the heads of state of the United States, Russia and Great Britain.

It fell to Truman, in the early months, to make what he called his most agonizing decision—whether to use the newly perfect atomic bomb on Japan. Two bombs were dropped at his direction, on the cities of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, and Japan surrendered shortly afterward.

Truman said use of the bomb possibly saved a million American lives.

When it became apparent that Greece and Turkey would fall to the Communists, Truman convinced Congress to order military and economic aid for the two beleaguered nations, the first such use of American funds.

Later, through the Marshall Plan—named for Gen. George Marshall, then secretary of state—the aid was extended to other European nations.

Winston Churchill, Britain's prime minister, credited Truman with single-handedly saving Europe through those actions.

Americans remembered him best for his plain-spoken, direct manner of speaking—a trait he attributed to his Missouri ancestors.

With the end of World War II, that facet of his personality was brought into play often, as the nation recovered from a war economy to peace. He used the powers of the presidency to the fullest, to stop strikes that he believed were against the national interest.

Jessee told newsmen after the announcement of death that Mrs. Truman's "loyalty and devotion were fabulous. The vigil was a very trying thing for her physically."

The former president will be buried in the courtyard of the library, an imposing limestone structure less than a mile from his home.

President Nixon was expected to declare a state funeral and preliminary plans are for him to attend the service.

A memorial service is planned at the Washington National Cathedral.

Nixon proclaimed Thursday a national day of mourning, ordering flags lowered to half staff at federal buildings for the next 30 days.

The auditorium in the Truman Library, where the funeral services will be conducted, holds only 200 persons, and attendance will be by invitation only.

Most foreign dignitaries were expected to go to a memorial service in Washington's National Cathedral, rather than coming to Independence.

Truman was the last of the great World War II figures, preceded in death by Dwight D. Eisenhower, Winston Churchill and Josef Stalin.

He was the president who set the United States against global communism in the Cold War that followed World War II. He ordered use of the atomic bomb to end World War II, extended unprecedented help to nations resisting Soviet domination, and ordered troops into Korea when Communists began their invasion of the south.

"Recognizing the new threat to peace that had emerged from the ashes of war, he stood boldly against it with his extension of aid to Greece and Turkey in 1947—and the

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN

Political ally and foe alike today hailed Harry S. Truman as a common man who honored the nation with his courage and decisiveness when thrust into the nation's highest office at a time of international peril.

President Nixon said, "Harry S. Truman will be remembered as one of the most courageous presidents in our history, who led the nation and the world through a critical period with exceptional vision and determination. Our hopes today for a generation of peace rest in large measure on the firm foundations that he laid."

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said, "Among the talents that Harry Truman brought to the presidency were two indispensable qualities of a great leader—forthrightness and courage. The sign on his desk, 'The Buck Stops Here,' was no idle boast. But in an office of great power he never lost the

Day of mourning for Truman set

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon proclaimed Thursday as a national day of mourning for former President Harry S. Truman and directed that flags on all federal buildings and facilities be displayed at half staff for the next 30 days.

The President's proclamation was issued about an hour after Truman's death was announced in Kansas City.

Nixon recommended that "the people assemble on that day in their respective places of worship, there to pay homage to the memory of President Truman."

"I invite the people of the world who share our grief to join us in this solemn observance," Nixon said.

A White House spokesman said he did not know whether Nixon would go to Independence for the funeral services.

'Truman Doctrine' thus established was crucial to the defense of liberty in Europe and the world," Nixon said, adding: "In launching the Marshall Plan, he began the most far-sighted and most generous act of international rebuilding ever undertaken. With his characteristically decisive action in Korea, he made possible the defense of peace and freedom in Asia."

The hospital attributed Truman's death to the "complexity of organic failures causing a collapse of the cardiovascular system."

Truman entered Research Hospital three weeks ago today — after fighting lung congestion at home for two weeks — and had been in a coma since early Saturday. Earlier in his hospitalization he appeared to be rallying, but the combination of respiratory problems, hardened arteries and kidney disease were too much for the old man.

In recent years he had appeared frail and drawn, his weight down from a presidential 170 pounds. He long ago abandoned his life-long predilection for long, fast early morning walks, but made almost daily excursions on shopping trips with his wife, Bess, herself 87.

Mrs. Truman received the sad news by telephone. A family spokesman, Randall Jesse, said she received it "with the same fortitude and calmness with which she has faced all of this."

Truman was president in a turbulent period for the nation: the end of World War II, the domestic turmoil that accompanied return to peace, and the evolution of the Cold War with Russia.

He was a blunt, outspoken Democrat who rose through a powerful, corrupt political machine from county judge to senator, becoming vice president in Franklin D. Roosevelt's fourth term. When Roosevelt died on April 12, 1945, Truman — in office only 82 days — was sworn in as the nation's 33rd president.

He served nearly two full terms, then returned home to Independence in 1963, spurning what he called "fantastic offers to lend my name to this cause or that."

For more than a decade thereafter he devoted his time to writing, some lecturing and a television series, and to the Harry S. Truman Library which houses his papers and memorabilia.

But the infirmities of age finally took their toll of a man whose life had been one of great vigor and ebullient good health. After a tiring round of 80th birthday parties in 1964 he suffered a bathroom fall — probably occasioned by a small stroke — and his public appearances became a trickle.

In 1966, appearing thin and feeble, Truman gave up his daily visits to his office in the Truman Library, six blocks from his home. He cut down on the number and length of his traditional crack-of-dawn walks, and finally abandoned them altogether.

Yet Truman was no recluse. He took drives almost daily with his wife Bess — to the grocery store, post office or the public library — content to wait in the car while she went about errands. Mrs. Truman, whom he married in 1919, was only nine months younger than he.

His was a graceful transition from the mightiest office in the free world to the life of "Mr. Citizen," as he titled the first of his three books.

humility that endeared him to millions as simply the man from Missouri."

Former President Lyndon B. Johnson said, "A 20th century giant is gone. Few men of any times ever shaped the world as did the man from Independence."

"President Truman presided over the destiny of this country during one of its most turbulent eras. Never flinching in the face of crucial national choices, his decisions changed the course of human events throughout the world."

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., who bolted the Democratic party to run for president against Truman as a Dixiecrat in 1948, said, "His decisive leadership in the crucial years of his presidency was an example in courage. He did not hesitate to make the difficult decisions he felt were right."

Democratic Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington said,

"Harry Truman was confronted with a series of tough, unprecedented decisions with nothing less than the future security of the free world at stake. He never shrank from those decisions, despite the hostile environment of those post-war years. His courage, his wisdom and his decisiveness in that period shaped the future course of the Western world."

President Nixon also said of Truman, "Recognizing the new threat to peace that had emerged from the ashes of war, he stood boldly against it with his extension of aid to Greece and Turkey in 1947 — and the 'Truman Doctrine' thus established was crucial to the defense of liberty in Europe and the world. In launching the Marshall plan, he began the most far-sighted and most generous act of international rebuilding ever undertaken."

"With his characteristically decisive action in Korea, he made possible the defense of peace and freedom in Asia."

12 crepes

Rinse, pat dry and chop half of fresh mushrooms and slice remaining half or drain canned mushrooms. MAKE FILLING FOR CREPES as follows: In medium saucepan heat 1/4 cup of butter. Add scallions, 1 teaspoon of salt and 1/4 teaspoon of black pepper. Sauté 2 minutes. Add chopped mushrooms, shrimp and 1/4 cup of parsley; sauté, stirring. Add 2 tablespoons flour. Sauté about 3 minutes. MAKE SAUCE as follows: In medium saucepan heat 1/4 cup of butter. Stir in remaining 4 tablespoons of the flour and cook 1 minute. Gradually stir in milk, lemon juice, 1 teaspoon of salt and 1/4 teaspoon of black pepper. Heat to boiling point. Cook, stirring, 2 minutes.

Saute sliced mushrooms in remaining 1/4 cup butter. Stir into sauce, along with grated cheese. Grease an 11 1/2 x 7 1/2-inch baking dish. Place 2 tablespoons mushroom filling on each crepe. Roll up jelly roll fashion and place in baking dish. Pour some sauce over crepes. Bake, uncovered, in a preheated 375-degree oven for 30 minutes. Heat sauce, serve in boat. Makes 12 crepes.

*CREPES

1 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1 cup milk, divided
Salad oil for frying

In medium bowl combine flour and salt; make well in center. Stir in eggs and about 1/4 cup of the milk; blend until smooth. Beat in remaining milk. Batter should be the consistency of unbeaten heavy cream. Refrigerate for 1/2 hour before using. In small skillet or crepe pan, heat 1 tablespoon salad oil; tilt pan to coat thoroughly with oil. Pour off excess oil. Pour 2 tablespoons batter into heated oil; tilt pan so batter spreads to cover bottom completely. Cook over medium heat 2 minutes or until crepe is brown on bottom; turn and cook on second side 2 minutes or until golden. Repeat, making 12 crepes in all. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Homemakers Club has Yule party

The Baker Extension Homemakers Club had a Christmas party Dec. 14 at the Douglas Building. Mrs. Ardell Clark, president, welcomed the members, their families, and one guest, Mrs. Hazel Underwood. George Walden offered thanks before the delicious meal was served. Afterwards, everyone sang carols, exchanged gifts, and revealed secret pals.

Evans home is scene of dinner

A traditional red and green color scheme highlighted with red and white candles decorated the home of Beas Evans when she entertained friends with Christmas dinner on Friday evening. The serving table, covered with a holly green cloth, was centered with a large red candle encircled with holly and other greenery interspersed with various Christmas ornaments.

Guests included Dr. and Mrs. George Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Frank McLarty, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Garner, Mrs. Louise Kalin, Dewey Hendrix and Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Bryant of Little Rock.

Pro scouts eyeing draft picks

By JOHN R. SKINNER
Associated Press Sports Writer

MIAMI (AP) — The football all-star games for college seniors are supposed to give the pro scouts an opportunity to evaluate potential draft picks, but the North-South game here Monday night might have provided more questions than answers.

Chuck Foreman, the University of Miami, Fla., running back-flanker who is expected to go early in the draft, was brilliant in the South's 10-17 loss.

ing cause as he gained 83 net yards in 22 carries and caught four passes for 60 yards.

Foreman, chosen the South's most valuable player, also made two critical fourth quarter fumbles. That's something that could dull his pro rating since he had his fumble troubles throughout the past season.

Rufus "Roadrunner" Ferguson, the 5-foot-6 Wisconsin star who is trying to prove he can play with the big guys, was picked the North's top player after scoring on a two-yard touchdown run which enabled the North to tie the score at 10-10 in the fourth quarter.

But Ferguson had only 55 net yards in 21 carries, an average of 2.6 yards a try, and left doubts about his ability to block onrushing linemen.

Arkansas quarterback Joe Ferguson kept the Rebels alive with his passing effort—17 of 33 for 205 yards and an 18-yard strike to flanker David Knight of William and Mary for the South's lone TD.

But Ferguson was also the victim of four interceptions.

The Rebels' other quarterback, John Madeya of Louisville, hit only five of 16 passes for 43 yards and was intercepted once.

North passers didn't fare much better. Gary Danielson, hoping to follow in the footsteps of former Purdue quarterbacks such as Kansas City's Len Dawson, Cleveland's Mike Phipps and Miami's Len Dawson, completed only two of 13 passes for 37 yards. Temple's Doug Shober was successful on nine of 11 tries for 106 yards, but his two misses were both interceptions.

The North, held to a 21-yard field goal by Michigan State's Marvin Roberts until Ferguson's run, got the winning tally on a 13 yard scamper by Arizona's Bob McCall after Foreman fumbled at midfield and Villanova's Kevin Reilly recovered.

The South, getting its other score on a 23-yard field goal by Alford Reese of Tennessee State in the third quarter, marched back to the North three after McCall's score only to have Foreman fumble.

Road to Super Bowl has a few sharp turns

By KEN RAPPAPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The road to the Super Bowl now leads through the cities of Washington and Pittsburgh after a couple of sharp turns.

In fact, there was only one smooth ride in the first round of the National Football League playoffs over the holiday weekend.

"We're ready for the Dallas Cowboys," said Washington quarterback Billy Kilmer after directing a 16-3 victory over the Green Bay Packers Sunday in the only playoff game without last-minute drama.

The Cowboys were involved in one of the three Hollywood finishes—beating the San Francisco 49ers 30-28 with two touchdowns in the last two minutes of play on Saturday.

The other survivors who'll play next Sunday in the second round—the Pittsburgh Steelers and Miami Dolphins—also served up a healthy portion of dramatics in their victories.

The Steelers' success was the most spectacular. They won their game against the Oakland Raiders 13-7 on Saturday with a freak pass-deflection play in the last five seconds.

The Dolphins' victory was no freak, though. Earl Morrall directed an 80-yard touchdown drive, then Jim Klick powered over for the winning score from the six with less than five minutes remaining, clinching a nervous 20-14 victory over the Cleveland Browns.

"When the chips were down, we just couldn't stop them," said Cleveland linebacker Dale Lindsey.

"Everything was laid out in front of us with eight minutes to go," said Miami Coach Don Shula. "We had to score a touchdown and we did what we had to do. This exemplifies what we did this year."

The Dolphins did something this year that no one else did—won 14 games in a row en route to the championship of the American Football Conference East. And they were supposed to be an impossible mission for the Browns, the "wild card" AFC team.

But the upstart Browns halted the Dolphins' strong running game and even took a 14-13 lead in the second half on Mike Phipps' touchdown pass before Morrall and Klick took over.

In Pittsburgh, the AFC's Central Division champs appeared beaten by Oakland. The Raiders, champions in the AFC West, had a 7-6 lead on a late 30-yard scramble by Ken Stabler.

But with five seconds remaining and Pittsburgh down to its last chance, quarterback Terry Bradshaw threw a desperation pass that was deflected by receiver John Fuqua and Oakland defender Jack Tatum.

The football floated into the arms of Franco Harris, and the Steelers' rookie took it 42 yards for the game-winning touchdown.

"Unbelievable," said Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll. "A miracle sent from heaven—what else can you say?" said Bradshaw.

"I guess you could say it was a little bit of luck and God was with us and everything like that," said Harris. "When you have a feeling that this could be the last play of the season and that you could blow it, then that one more chance pulls it through for you."

Referee Fred Swearingen had to confer with his associates to confirm the legality of the pass. The Raiders protested that it was illegal, claiming Tatum didn't touch the ball, and instead, it was touched by two of defensive receivers.

But the official verdict was "simultaneous" contact by Fuqua and Tatum, making the ball anybody's property.

Dallas trailed 26-13 with 16 minutes remaining when the NFC's wild-card team came back and beat San Francisco, the NFC West champ. Quarterback Roger Staubach, last year's Super Bowl hero, came off the bench in the last two minutes and threw a pair of TD passes.

"It was the best comeback I've ever seen a Dallas team make," said Cowboy Coach Tom Landry. "We just had to put everything together and we did. You can be in that situation 100 times and probably only win once."

Washington's famed "Over-the-Hill-Gang" defense stopped Green Bay's running attack cold Sunday. The Redskins, winners of the NFC East, never had an anxious moment with the Packers, who won the NFC's Central crown.

In next Sunday's action, the Redskins and Cowboys will contend for the National Football Conference title and the Dolphins and Steelers for the American. The winners meet in Super Bowl VII in Los Angeles on Jan. 14.

North All-Stars win over South

MIAMI (AP) — Although harassed by turnovers, Arkansas quarterback Joe Ferguson got the South's only touchdown in the annual North-South Shrine game in Miami last night.

Arizona's Bob McCall raced 13 yards for a touchdown in the fourth quarter to give the North All-Stars a 17-10 victory.

Ferguson got the South's only touchdown on an 18-yard pass to flanker David Knight of William and Mary.

Ferguson was intercepted five times. He finished the night with 17 out of 34 completions.

Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles served as coach for the South while Ferguson, receiver Mike Reppond, guard Tom Reed and defensive tackle Don Wunderly all started for the South.

The North had scored first on a 21-yard field goal by Marvin Roberts of Michigan State.

The Ferguson-to-Knight touchdown made it 7-3 at the half.

Ferguson did not start the second half, giving way to John Madeya of Louisville.

But the Razorback senior came back in the last minute of the period with the South leading 10-3 on a 23-yard field goal by Alford Reese of Tennessee State.

Bucks gaining precious ground

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Kareem Abdul-Jabbar lost a battle but the Milwaukee Bucks won the war.

And because of their 104-99 National Basketball Association victory over the Kansas City-Omaha Kings Monday night, the Bucks took some precious ground in the Midwest race.

Abdul-Jabbar, usually second to no man in the struggle for rebounds, was beaten 14-13 on the boards by the Kings' Sam Lacey.

Abdul-Jabbar, however, made up for second place in the rebound match by gaining first in scoring laurels. He wound up with a game-high 32 points, including 13 in the final quarter that helped seal the triumph.

The victory, coupled with Chicago's 115-108 loss to the Phoenix Suns, boosted Milwaukee's lead over the Bulls to 4½ games in the Midwest Division.

In the only other NBA games Monday night, the New York Knicks beat the Detroit Pistons 113-110 and the Portland Trail Blazers stopped the Seattle SuperSonics 116-113.

No games were played in the American Basketball Association Monday night.

Three-point plays by Abdul-Jabbar and Jon McGlocklin in the final 35 seconds of the third period put Milwaukee in front of Kansas City-Omaha to stay.

Nate Archibald of the Kings scored 20 points and contributed 18 assists to their attack.

Whalers make easy win over Raiders

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
There's no place like the road for the holidays. Ask Camille Henry, coach of the New York Raiders.

"You know, it's an advantage to play on the road on Christmas ... you can't get fat and saavy from being home with your family," he says.

He had every right to be upset Monday after his Raiders were eaten alive 8-2 by the New England Whalers in a runaway World Hockey Association game.

"The Whalers' wives undoubtedly growled at their husbands for having to play today and their husbands took it out on us," added Henry. "That's the reason for the 8-2 score."

Logic wasn't on Henry's side Monday, though. Being home for the holidays didn't hurt the other two winners in Monday night's action as the Cleveland Crusaders hammered the Philadelphia Blazers 8-0 and the Chicago Cougars stopped the Alberta Oilers 3-2.

No games were played in the National Hockey League on Christmas.

John French, Terry Caffery and Kevin Ahearn scored within a 2½-minute span in the first period as the Whalers started their rout over the stunned Raiders.

"This was a good Christmas present," said New England Coach Jack Kelley, obviously in a happier frame of mind than Henry. "It was a good team effort—and our best effort in New York."

The Whalers had lost their first three games here.

Cleveland peppered two Philadelphia goalies with 50 shots en route to their home-ice romp over the Blazers.

Soviets favored in opening match for World Hockey Cup

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — "If we give 110 percent against the Russians, we'll still lose by 10 goals," Rob Palmer of the University of Denver mused as his United States team prepared for the opening match tonight in the second annual World Cup of Ice Hockey here.

Palmer is anxious to play, but he's also a realist. The task ahead of the American team, comprised of U.S. college hockey players who have never skated together as a team, is awesome.

First of all there are the defending champions, the Soviet Union. The Russians have all but two of the players from the contingent that surprised the National Hockey League's Team Canada last summer and also won the Olympic gold medal at Japan last February.

Then there's Czechoslovakia, which won the 1972 Group A World championship. The Czechs, with most of their world tournament players on this team, posted the only victory over Russia in last year's round-robin World Cup.

Rounding out the four-team tourney will be Canada, represented by the Medicine Hat, Alta., Junior A team, which also has added other standout players from the Western Canada Junior Hockey League.

The Americans open the tourney against the Czechs tonight, and U.S. Coach Bob Johnson, of the University of Wisconsin, feels his players will do themselves credit.

"We're not going to play scared," he says. "The players are all looking forward to playing the best in the world. It's a great challenge for them."

The Czechs play the Canadians Wednesday night and the Russians Friday night to complete the Colorado Springs portion of the tournament. Action then shifts to Bloomington, Minn., where the Russians play Canada Saturday night. The United States meets Canada Dec. 31 and closes the tournament Jan. 2 against the Russians.

Peach Bowl

Marbury

West Virginia (8-3)

The West Virginia Mountaineers' problem this season is that they can give it, but they take it, too. They have the fourth most explosive scoring team in the nation, with a 30.5 points-per-game average, but their opponents were also averaging 21 points a game against them. The offense is led by quarterback Bernie Galiffa (nephew of former Army All-American quarterback Arnie Galiffa). The team rushing leader is Kerry Marbury, who scored 18 touchdowns (second best in the country) and averaged 5.2 yards per carry. The defense's best game was the last one, holding Syracuse to 12 points.

(Dec. 29; television 8 p.m. EST via Mizlou Productions.)

Shaw

North Carolina St. (7-3-1)

Like the Mountaineers, North Carolina St. is also a high-scoring, wobbly-defense-type team. N.C. St. started off with a disappointing (for them) tie against Maryland in the opener. Then soon lost to Georgia and North Carolina. But with quarterback Bruce Shaw and rusher Stan Fritts, the team bounced back and won six straight before losing the last game of the season, to Penn State, 37-22. (Penn State, by the way, is the lone common opponent for these two teams. West Virginia lost to Penn St., 28-19.) Fritts, with hurt leg, is a question mark.

Prediction: West Virginia 42-17

What happened? Nobody knows

OAKLAND (AP) — Coach John Madden is certain NFL officials looked at a videotape replay before allowing the freak touchdown that ended his Oakland Raiders' title hopes—and he's just as certain that they ruled wrong.

The press box, and television replay was not used in making the decision," Kenil insisted. "The referee was simply clearing up a confusing situation."

"He could have done it much easier by just signaling a touchdown," retorted Madden. And, after studying the game film, Christmas Eve, the Raiders' coach said he's convinced Oakland defender Jack Tatum didn't touch the ball but hit Steelers receiver John Fuqua from behind, with the ball than ricocheting off Fuqua.

That means Harris' catch and touchdown run were illegal, Madden insisted, because two offensive players aren't allowed to touch the ball consecutively on pass reception. "But there was no way they were going to call it any other way with all those people out on the field," Madden said of the fans who spilled onto the turf after the touchdown. "Somebody would have been killed."

"The referee (Fred Swearingen) went in to use the dugout telephone and when he came out, he called it a touchdown." Madden contended Swearingen called top NFL officials, including executive director Jim Kenil and supervisor of officials Art McNally, who were watching the game in a press box equipped with closed circuit television.

"There was no decision from UCLA, Maryland, Marquette, Minnesota, Long Beach State, Missouri, Pennsylvania, Vanderbilt, Oklahoma and Villanova risk their unbeaten records in college basketball during the rash of Christmas holiday tournaments that get underway today.

The national champion UCLA Bruins, with an incredible won-lost record of 185-5 in their last 190 games, put their 51-game winning streak on the line against Drake in the opening round of the Sugar Bowl tournament at New Orleans Friday night.

Sooners in New Orleans preparing for Sugar Bowl

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Second ranked Oklahoma has arrived in New Orleans to begin final workouts before the Sooners defend their Sugar Bowl crown against Penn State on New Year's Eve.

The Sooners reached here Christmas night and the Penn State team was scheduled to arrive today.

There's more at stake than the Sugar Bowl crown. If No. 1 USC loses to Ohio State in the Rose Bowl, there will be a scramble for the national championship. Penn State and Oklahoma both are aware of the chance.

Oklahoma Coach Chuck Fairbanks said he is thinking of the bowl and will leave the championship up to the pollsters. "The national championship is purely a mythical one and there can be no clear cut champion without playoffs to decide such things," he told newsmen. "I feel that we are fortunate for our ratings and accomplishments of this season. We'll just let the people who vote on those things decide after the bowl game."

Currently USC is No. 1 in the nation and Coach John McKay has said he does not agree that a Trojan loss in the Rose Bowl would throw the title up for grabs.

Fairbanks' Sooners are in a unique position. They are the first team ever to defend a Sugar Bowl title in the same year.

Oklahoma defeated Auburn last New Year's Day.

Buckeye scout talks about the great ones

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Three teams pop into Ecco Sarkkinen's mind when the Ohio State scout of nearly three decades thinks of the greatest college football squads he's seen.

Sarkkinen, completing his 27th season with the Buckeyes, prefers to think of eras rather than teams when he talks about the great ones.

"I would say the 1947-48 Michigan team, Michigan State of the mid-50s and the three Ohio State teams of Rex Kern and company," Sarkkinen said.

He refuses to put top-ranked Southern California which plays Ohio State in the Rose Bowl

New Year's day, in the same class for one reason. "This has to rank with John McKay's finest, but it's only for one season, not two or three years, like those others," he explained.

"The Michigan team had trick-type plays," he said. "They could hit you with so many different offensive patterns."

Of the Michigan State squads, he said, "They had perhaps the finest defensive talent the Big 10 has ever seen. Players such as Bubba Smith and George Webster are once in a lifetime."

Kern led Ohio State to a 27-2 record in three years, including a victory over Southern Cal in the 1969 Rose Bowl.

Sarkkinen said, "It was the best for total commitment by one class. Seventeen started as sophomores and 14 of them were drafted by the pros. "They had more offensive and defensive blue-chippers in balanced positions than any team I ever saw," he said of the 1968-70 Buckeye powerhouses.

However, Sarkkinen isn't underselling the top-ranked Trojans who ripped through 11 straight opponents during the season.

Ed Bethune reflects on race for attorney general

By PERRIN JONES
Searcy Citizens
SEARCY, Ark. (AP) — Ed Bethune, the first Searcy resident to seek a major statewide office since 1838, agreed to appraise in an interview his unsuccessful Republican candidacy.

Question: What led you to seek this office this year?

Answer: The attorney general's office was interesting to me because of my interest in the reform of the criminal justice system. I had worked with the attorney general and the (state) Supreme Court for the last year or more on this reform and when Ray Thornton announced his decision to run for Congress, I decided to seek the office to continue and expand the programs he had instituted. It appeared to me that the Democratic field would be limited to Jim Guy Tucker and Bill Thompson and I thought Tucker would win because of the short campaigning time in light of the fact that his name was far better known than Thompson's. I felt that if Tucker got the Democratic nomination, a Republican candidate would have a chance because Tucker's liberal image would be a strong contrast to my conservatism.

Q: What did you feel was the single most difficult problem for you in this race?

A: Being a Republican in traditionally Democratic Arkansas, plus the fact that I was relatively unknown in comparison to my opponent. He had name recognition and, had already publicly campaigned in the primaries and that reinforced the name recognition problem. I, of course, considered running as a Democrat and as an independent to offset the old liability of the Republican tag, but, in the final analysis, I decided to run as a Republican because I believe in the two-party system and I believe that the philosophy of the Republican party is more in tune with the thinking of the people of Arkansas. It would have been hypocrisy for me not to have run as a Republican.

Q: How large a factor was financing in a race of this kind?

A: Financing and organization are the two most important factors in a campaign. I think financing is a little more important because media time must be tied up a long time in advance and this takes a lot of money. And, a Republican candidate has a built-in problem in the matter of organization. It is the organization that raises funds and the Democrats, controlling most of the lower-level offices in the state, already have an organization for their candidates. Any Republican candidate must start from near scratch. There are, of course, the county Republican committees, but they just don't have paid offices to hold it together so it just dies out until the next Republican candidate comes along. You might say that the Democrats have a permanent organization while the Republicans have a temporary one.

Q: In view of President Nixon's sweep of Arkansas, why do you think his "coattails" were so short with other Republican candidates such as you?

A: I call it the "penance vote." Many Arkansians were voting Republican for the first time in their lives for Nixon. I think they "cleansed themselves" by following that vote with marking a straight Democratic ticket. There were some defections, of course, but basically, that's what most voters did. Then, too, the President ran a quiet campaign. He wasn't making a Republican appeal so much as a personal appeal. Finally, I think the serious criticism of the Republican party that came up late in the campaign hurt Republican candidates below the presidential level, strong attacks by leading Democrats like Fulbright and Mills, more than they hurt Nixon. Watergate, the grain deal with Russia and the like made people who were willing to accept Nixon but not his party.

Q: Did you sense little interest below the presidential level while you were campaigning?

A: There was interest in White, Pulaski and Sebastian counties in my race because the three candidates had come from these counties. There was very little anywhere else because people didn't know the candidates and weren't really too sure what the attorney general did, anyway. Somehow, I had to show them what an Ed Bethune was as well as try to explain something about what the office did. I campaigned for the better part of seven months and, for the first six of those months, there was little interest. The interest grew markedly in the last four weeks, but, by then, the time was too short to capitalize on it on a statewide basis.

Q: Would the availability of funds have been greatly helpful in those last four weeks?

A: Something happened in my race in White and Pulaski counties during the end of the campaign, something that enabled me to carry both counties sizably. If we could have brought these same factors into play in, say, Randolph or Benton counties, and then on over the state, we would have done much better. Money would have been very valuable in getting media messages across in many areas we simply didn't have the funds to adequately cover. Lack of interest calls for more media dollars and interest calls for fewer media dollars. When the interest finally developed, we tried to cover specific areas in which we thought we had good potential, but real coverage was, frankly, too expensive. We honestly don't know yet just how much we spent on this campaign, we're still totaling it up, but it will probably run around $80,000 to $75,000, and that's a vast sum in anybody's mind.

— Slow down at sundown.

2 stabbed in prison

SOLEDAD, Calif. (AP) — Two Soledad Prison inmates have been stabbed to death and two others wounded in an incident a prison official says involved rival Mexican-American groups.

Guards found the bodies in two central facility housing units Monday.

George Baker, Soledad information officer, said, "This appeared to be a continuation of a struggle between two rival Mexican factions, the New Familia and the Mexican Mafia. It appears to be that members of both factions were hurt in the incident."

He said tension between the two Mexican-American prisoner groups had been building in recent months.

Baker said the nature of the incident was not known, but several crudely made blade type weapons have been found. The Monterey county district attorney's office was investigating.

Baker identified the dead men as Frank Villalobos, 24, of San Joaquin County, who had been at Soledad since May 1972, serving a term for attempted escape from a state prison and Pablo Jajera, 28, also of San Joaquin County, at Soledad since May 1971 on a first-degree robbery conviction.

The wounded prisoners—Joe Gacia, 30, and Arthur Chavez, 33—were in satisfactory condition at the prison hospital, Baker said.

Conclusion of gas agreement delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conclusion of a $40 billion, 25-year pact to import Soviet natural gas into the United States will be delayed until the spring while the Nixon administration reviews whether it is needed. The Washington Post said today.

The pact was to have been signed this month.

The Post quoted high administration sources as saying both the government and the six U.S. companies promoting the prospective pact have cooled on the project.

Among the reasons are doubts that Siberian gas reserves are as large as the Russians claim and the refusal of the Soviet government to permit independent testing of the deposits. In addition, the Post sources said, there were second thoughts about the high cost of the Soviet gas (about $1.50 per 1,000 cubic feet compared to the current U.S. price of 20 cents per 1,000 cubic feet) and about the national security impact of excessive U.S. reliance on Soviet Union gas.

Six American companies announced Nov. 3 they expected to sign an agreement before the end of 1972 on construction of a pipeline from Siberia to Murmansk on the Barents Sea. Another pipeline was to link Siberia with the Pacific Coast.

Natural gas is abundant in the Soviet Union and scarce in the United States, the world's largest consumer of the fuel. The Soviet Union has enough gas reserves to supply the United States for an estimated 30 years.

Victims of plane crash trying again

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Thirteen Uruguayans who survived for 70 days after a plane crash in the Andes Mountains have decided to take a plane home Thursday despite the fear of flying resulting from their ordeal.

The other three survivors already have flown home. The 13 were persuaded in a meeting with relatives and doctors that the return trip across the mountains by train and car would be too hard on them in their weakened condition.

There were 45 persons aboard the Uruguayan Air Force plane when it hit an Andean peak on Oct. 13. The plane was taking the Old Christian rugby team to Chile for a series of matches. Twenty-nine persons were dead by the end of October.

The survivors, all in their early 20s, had a good deal of food, having stocked up on candy and preserved fruit during a stop in Mendoza, Argentina, which is noted for its fruit. They converted the fuselage of the plane into a shelter, and they melted enough snow to give each person two quarts of water a day to prevent dehydration.

Nation's 33rd president died this morning

"I don't want to hang around Washington trying to tell the next man what to do," he said. He maintained to his death a policy of not commenting on any matter concerning foreign affairs.

Visitors to the century-old Truman home were restricted to a few close friends. He continued to receive visiting dignitaries, however, including the men who succeeded him as president.

Truman made one of his rare, later-years trips to the Truman Library on March 21, 1969, when President Nixon presented him with the piano he had played in the White House. Nixon and his wife also visited privately with Truman, then nearing his 88th birthday. "We discussed East-West relations," Nixon later told reporters. "I found Mr. Truman to be up on everything."

Lyndon B. Johnson, when he was president, was a frequent visitor to the home and the Truman Library. "I always come away having learned something," Johnson said after one visit.

Johnson made a special visit to the library to sign the Medicare bill—a tribute to Truman, who had been president when the legislation was inaugurated. Dwight D. Eisenhower toured the library after his presidency—a cordial meeting between the two men who had become enemies during the 1952 presidential campaign.

One life-long habit Truman did not give up in his old age was that of reading. His personal library was stacked with books—particularly on his favorite subject, history—and Mrs. Truman and friends continued to provide him with additional reading matter.

Since leaving the White House, Truman had been hospitalized for gall bladder removal, a hernia operation and several times for abdominal trouble. His physical ailments took their toll. From a presidential 180, his weight dropped to less than 140, making him appear partially frail. But his illnesses had no effect on his mind; friends said he remained mentally alert.

He delighted in the twice-yearly visits of daughter Margaret, Mrs. Clifton Daniel, and her four sons. The Daniels live in New York where he is an associate editor of the New York Times.

Truman was 80 years old when he became president. World War II was in its final stages, but relations between this country and the Soviet Union—wartime allies—already were falling into distrust. More than anything else, the fight against the worldwide spread of communism occupied the Truman administration.

Truman's foreign policy was aimed at rehabilitating war-torn countries and checking Communist encroachments at the same time. For the former he instituted a number of self-help programs such as the Truman Doctrine and the Marshall Plan.

His most decisive action toward halting the advance of communism was to send U.S. troops into Korea in 1950 to repulse the Communist-led North Koreans who crossed the 38th parallel into South Korea. Another time he thwarted the Russians by airlifting supplies into Berlin for 14 months, by-passing a Communist blockade.

It fell to Truman to order the first wartime use of the atomic bomb, three months after he took office—yet he did not even know of its development until he was sworn in. The bomb drop on the Japanese cities of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, Truman said later, saved one million American and one-half million British lives. He had announced Germany's surrender May 8, 1945—his 61st birthday.

At home, Truman was occupied with reconvertng a wartime nation to peace. There were strikes in one critical industry after another. With relaxed price controls, the costs of goods, services and housing rocketed.

Truman ran into a balky Congress with nearly every piece of major legislation. He referred to the 1947-48 Republican-dominated assemblage as the "do-nothing 80th Congress" and used that as his battle cry when he stumped the country for election in the fall of 1948.

He upset all predictions by defeating Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican candidate, by more than two million votes.

Truman, descended from pioneer stock with Southern sympathies, worked on his parents' farm near Grandview, Mo., from 1906 to 1917 after trying a variety of jobs in nearby Kansas City—as bank clerk, railroad timekeeper, drugstore clerk.

Despite weak eyes, he went into the Army as a lieutenant, fought with distinction in France and returned home a major. He commanded Battery D of the 158th Field Artillery, 38th Infantry Division, and his men—mostly from the Kansas City area—called him "Captain Harry."

He failed as a partner in a haberdashery business. But through an Army friend who was the nephew of Missouri political boss Tom Pendergast, Truman was elected a county judge—an administrative position akin to a county commissioner. Two years later, in 1924, Truman was defeated for reelection—the only time he ever lost a political contest.

In her recently released biography of her father, Margaret Truman Daniel said Truman fought against his own nomination as vice president in 1944 because he knew Roosevelt was a sick man, and Truman didn't want to go into the White House "through the back door."

Margaret said Roosevelt's illness was on her father's mind when he remarked to a reporter: "Do you recall what happened to most vice presidents who succeeded to the presidency? Usually, they were ridiculed in office, had their hearts broken, lost any vestige of respect they had had before. I don't want that to happen to me."

Singing interrupted by Nicaraguan earthquake

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The singing of Christmas carols was interrupted at the Nicaraguan home of one Arkansan when the earthquake ripped that South American nation last week.

Carol Cheek, 34, daughter of Forrest Russell of Little Rock, returned to Little Rock Monday from Managua with her children. She told newsmen that she and her husband were giving a dinner party the night the quake hit.

The Cheek residence was five miles out of Managua, she said. "We were all outside on our patio," she said. "There had been little tremors during dinner and we made our usual laughing comments."

While the group was singing Christmas carols, the first big quake hit.

"The first thing is the lights went off," she said. "And then it started shaking. Everybody ran outside and I ran inside for the children. Everything in the house fell down. Not the walls, but everything on the walls, everything."

"By the time we got the kids out it had really stopped," Mrs. Cheek said. "Nobody really realized then just how serious it was."

She said that after viewing the city itself, she considered it "virtually completely destroyed."

"At least 75 per cent already is down and the rest will have to come down," she said. "They've already sent in demolition teams to bring it down."

Her husband, James, 36, is connected with the U.S. Embassy in Managua, she said. Russell is head of the Arkansas Education Association.

'Quake of all quakes,' former resident says

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — "It was the quake of all quakes," said Beatrice Koone, wife with relatives here Christmas Day after a flight from Managua, Nicaragua.

"We had been in earthquakes before, including one in Costa Rica, I'd say in 1952, which we thought was quite rough, but this one was the daddy of them all," she added.

Mrs. Koone, 46, and her two children left Managua by U.S. military transport plane after a directive to move was delivered to her by her husband Carl.

He is a rural development officer with the Agency for International Development, she said. The Koones had lived in Nicaragua for 6½ years.

Mrs. Koone said she, her husband, and maid, and the children—Marsha, 20, and Donald, 17—were at home around 12:30 a.m. when the first of three large, long tremors began. The house was 8 miles outside Managua, she said.

"My daughter had been downtown to a movie and had felt a tremor in the movie, but apparently no one else felt it much," Mrs. Koone said. "Thank goodness she got on home. If she had been downtown when it happened, we might not have seen her yet."

The daughter had been in Managua four days after classes adjourned at Sophie Newcomb school, which is affiliated with Tulane University in New Orleans, La. The son's school, an American school in Managua, was demolished.

None of the three quakes split the walls of the Koone residence, but cabinet doors were flung open, dishes were tossed out "and any kind of knick-knack was broken if it was out."

"The second threw me to the floor," Mrs. Koone said.

Because roads were impassable, the family walked over a mountain the next day to Managua.

"The electrical power went out immediately," she said.

The true meaning of Christmas

Food is needed in quake's aftermath

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Nicaragua's ruler says the survivors of the earthquake that devastated Managua need food, not medicine or blood plasma.

"We need food for the people," said Gen. Anastasio Somoza, the country's leader. He told foreign nations not to send any more medical supplies, that the supply was sufficient.

The quake Saturday destroyed about 75 per cent of Managua, a city of 300,000, and the toll was estimated at 5,000 to 10,000 dead, with 20,000 injured. Somoza said the country already was suffering from a drought and 250,000 people were unemployed.

Managua was ordered evacuated, and most of the survivors left. Officials said they would cut off relief food supplies to about 25,000 who refused to leave.

"We have to empty the area. We are afraid of an epidemic," said Gen. Luis Rodriguez Somoza, the relief coordinator. There was still no water or electricity in the city Monday and the smell of rotting bodies was heavy in the central area. International relief operations have gone into high gear. President Nixon ordered "an all-out effort to provide all needed help to Nicaragua." CARE in New York said it had 700 tons of food available. The American Red Cross renewed its request for Americans to contribute money, not supplies.

U.S. Air Force planes loaded with rolled oats, flour, field hospitals, water purification equipment and other supplies departed hourly from MacDill Air Force Base in Florida. Army engineers with dump trucks, wreckers and bulldozers were flown in.

Carlos Giron Romero, head of the general hospital El Retiro, said he did not believe there would be an epidemic although, "of course, a possibility always exist."

In front of the hospital, some 900 patients were treated in mobile hospitals set up by the U.S. Army.

Fires that raged out of control in the Nicaraguan capital were reported under control. Because water mains were wrecked, fire fighters had to use water from Lake Managua, where hundreds of bodies had been lined up along the shores.

Many of the victims were buried in common graves because of the urgency required in heading off possible epidemics. There was a shortage of caskets, and those that were used had sometimes two and three bodies in them.

Many bodies still are believed trapped beneath the ruins of buildings toppled by the earthquake.

Phillipine plane said shot down

MANILA (AP) — Moslem dissidents reportedly shot down a Philippine air force C47 with a crew of seven during fighting on Christmas Eve in "an increasingly tense situation" in southern Sulu province, the Philippine military said today.

The report, which said the fate of the seven men was still unknown, came as military authorities reported continued fighting between the military and Moslem dissidents, numerous attacks on military units by armed Moslem bands, growing casualty lists on both sides and an increasing refugee problem in the combat areas.

President Ferdinand E. Marcos said in a statement he had evidence that "foreign trained troops" were fighting on the Moslem side, but did not elaborate.

A military spokesman said at least 46 Philippine soldiers have been killed in the fighting since September. This figure did not include the missing airmen.

Moslem casualties were placed at 92 dead. Unofficial reports reaching Manila from the south gave much higher figures.

HOPE, ARKANSAS

Long weekend is over, 530 die in accidents

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Long Christmas weekend ended today after cease-fires in Vietnam and Northern Ireland, more than 530 dead in U.S. traffic accidents and appeals for peace from religious leaders.

U.S. bombing of North Vietnam resumed this afternoon, after a 36-hour cease-fire for Christmas. U.S. officials in Saigon said President Nixon had hoped the halt would bring the North Vietnamese back to the negotiating table, but it didn't.

Both the South Vietnamese and Viet Cong declared 24-hour cease-fires, but each side charged the other with numerous violations. The Saigon command said the Communists launched 50 attacks during the cease periods in which 45 South Vietnamese and 60 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were killed.

Northern Ireland had one of its quietest weekends, with only three minor shooting incidents Sunday night in which no one was hurt. The Roman Catholics of the Irish Republican Army proclaimed a three-day cease-fire, and Protestant extremists also were quiet.

Pope Paul VI, giving his blessing to a crowd of 15,000 in St. Peter's Square, used 16 languages—including Vietnamese—to wish the world "a blessed Christmas in the joy and peace of Christ." The Roman Catholic primate of Poland, Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, speaking at Warsaw's St. John's Cathedral, called on America's Catholic bishops to make "utmost efforts to stop the bloodshed of innocent children and people" in Vietnam.

In a traditional Christmas broadcast, Queen Elizabeth II called on her subjects to pray for the people of Northern Ireland. "May tolerance and understanding release the people from terror and put gladness in the place of fear," she said.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey, told 1,500 people at Canterbury Cathedral that the message of Christmas must be to break the "vicious circle of fear" causing the violence in Northern Ireland and Vietnam.

President Nixon and his wife celebrated Christmas at their Biscayne, Fla., home and

Boyleing it down

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks you always hear the day after Christmas:

"Daddy, can you fix my new doll? She just broke her head."

"I'm going to put a beartrap in the fireplace — just in case that fatascal tries to come down our chimney again tonight."

"Just think: we have only 364 days left to enjoy before we have to go through it all again."

"Somehow it didn't seem right to have Christmas fall on a Monday. What is there to celebrate on a Monday?"

"Christmas is getting to be a year-round industry. It takes six months to get ready for Santa Claus and six months to clean up after he has gone."

"Well, I wanted nothing much for Christmas — and that's exactly what I got."

"Daddy, all the air just went out of my bicycle tire. Can you fix it for me?"

"I really don't mind getting bills so much. What I hate is to have to pay them."

"Of course I enjoy the robe I got for Christmas. I like it so much that I wish my wife would let me wear it. She's had it on all morning."

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB Is 'early to rise' harmful?

Dear Dr. Lamb—I am 24, married and in pretty good health. All my life my dad conditioned me to "rise and shine" very early. As a result, I cannot sleep after about 7 a.m. Since I am a schoolteacher, this suits me fine. Unfortunately, my husband and I entertain a lot on weekends 'til all hours and have friends stay over. During the week, we hit the sack late (midnight) and people are constantly telling me that I'm nuts—and my body must have seven or eight hours sleep a night. My 30-year-old sis is just like me and we average five or six hours sleep a night. We feel fine, though our husbands are worried over our lack of sleep. We do have dark circles under our eyes—but those have always been there. We take vitamin supplements but, because of everyone's fussing, now we are getting worried.

Even though I have darkened the bedroom, I simply cannot sleep past 7. If I do sleep more than eight hours, I feel groggy all day. Please advise. I've tried afternoon naps, but I cannot sleep.

Dear Reader—The key to your problem is in your own statement that you feel fine and are in pretty good health. There is no set rule for how many hours of sleep a person needs. Some people, like yourself, need only five or six hours of sleep—and some apparently even less. Others need 10 hours. We are all individuals with different needs. Sleep is necessary mostly for the proper function of the nervous system but the amount varies.

Many sleep patterns are habits, which are often formed early in life. I suspect that the brain organizes itself to a given rhythm in infancy and early childhood and the daily cycle then activates brain mechanisms thereafter that control our own day-night cycle. The individual brain patterns become ones' own individual biological clock. While we can make some adjustments in our habits—like learning to take an afternoon nap—the basic rhythm is probably programmed for life. Darkening the room, then, won't change the basic, inherent brain rhythm, although the sudden cue of light or noise may disturb your usual cycle and cause you to lose sleep. This is what happens on globe-circling trips. The change in day-night cycle geographically is out of phase with one's biological clock and the body has to make an adjustment to reset its cycle. After the readjustment, the individual returns to the original cycle of six or eight or 10 hours sleep.

The dark circles under the eyes have nothing to do with your sleep habits. The circles are from the veins around the eye under the skin. The blue blood here causes the color. Everyone has the same blood in this region. Some have more fat around the eye and the veins are deeper and cannot be seen. It only tells me that your face is rather thin—which is more a function of your eating and energy-expending habits and familial characteristics than a matter of sleep.

Whatever became of Lt. Calley?

By TOM TIEDE

COLUMBUS, Ga. — (NEA) — The conviction of Lt. William Calley in March of 1971 was perhaps the most unpopular verdict in the history of the U.S. jurisprudence. The Indiana state flag was dropped to half mast, several state legislatures passed resolutions of protest, draft board members resigned throughout the nation, and in one demonstration alone, here in Columbus, 4,000 people gathered in opposition.

Today, 20 months later, the shouting is over.

Calley, to be sure, is still serving sentence (he lives in a bachelor apartment, under guard, his penalty for the My Lai massacre thus far reduced from life to 20 years). A corone recording of "The Battle Hymn of Lt. Calley" can occasionally be heard on country-western radio stations. The officer's post, nearby Fort Benning, continues to receive periodic inquiries about him.

But: The Indiana flag again flies high, the legislatures are on to other business, and at the time of the most recent Calley demonstration in Columbus — last spring — merely 250 pickets were on hand.

The only dihedrad left, it would seem, is an improbable one: highly respected Columbus attorney Vincent McCauley. McCauley, 61, who once had a first-name relationship with John F. Kennedy, is the director (and some say only member) of a less than flourishing "national movement to get this patriotic soldier out of confinement."

McCauley began the movement on the first anniversary of Calley's incarceration. A longtime Calley sympathizer (he defended the lieutenant against a multi-million dollar damage suit filed by My Lai survivors), the attorney says he "waited and waited for somebody to get up support for this man. When they didn't by the end of his first year in jail, I nominated myself to get something going."

The something is the "Free Calley" organization. McCauley rented a storefront office in downtown Columbus (the same office headquarters the 1960 JFK presidential campaign), put an ad in a local paper, sent out mimeographed fliers, distributed thousands of petitions, and waited for the action to begin. But it hardly did.

McCauley says his organization is now "worldwide." He claims he still sends out "hundreds" of letters each week. And receives "mail from all over the place." But observations here indicate otherwise. His storefront is open only sporadically, and then does scant business. The large "Free Calley" sign on the building is peeling in two, but nobody notices. McCauley's file of correspondence, while varied, is nonetheless small.

When pressed to identify others in the movement the lawyer speaks vaguely about "that woman down in Florida" or "the man up there in, where is it, Minnesota? He does a lot of work."

Despite the sluggishness of national support, however, McCauley's personal commitment is unshakable. A World War II Army officer who took part in the invasion of France (Utah Beach), he says Calley is innocent by reason of the necessary brutality of war.

"I was in combat myself and I saw many men do things that you wouldn't think men could ordinarily do. In My Lai that day, Calley was operating in a free fire zone. That meant anyone found was considered to be the enemy. I remember a fellow asking me once what I would have done in Calley's place — and I had to tell him that I really didn't know."

Besides the injustice of the original charge, McCauley believes, as do millions, that Calley was also denied impartiality at the atrocity trial itself. He questions the energy with which Calley's 71-year-old attorney conducted the defense, he suggests that the court-martial jury was influenced by command, and he mimics the consensus of many by alluding to scapegoatism: Two dozen people, from privates to generals were investigated for My Lai, says McCauley, "but just this one small lieutenant was convicted. It just smells."

The odor, moreover, has what McCauley feels is an international stench. He has John Birch Society literature which asserts My Lai was Communist-directed. "I have to hand it to these people (Communists)," McCauley sighs. "They've done a great job in undermining the U.S. military. I'm not thinking just of Calley here. I'm thinking of all lieutenants. Who wants to stay in an army that doesn't back them up?"

Ironically, the latter opinion is not only the fundamental complaint but the fundamental hope of the Free Calley movement. McCauley's great expectation is that Calley will eventually be freed if only for the sake of a viable U.S. military organization. Already, he says, there are signs of service stress: "I'm told the Infantry especially is having a heck of a time trying to recruit its new career officers."

So, the Free Calley movement, what there is of it, is still confident of success. Their lieutenant, after all, has not yet been subjected to criminal status — he lives in unprecedented style for a man convicted of 22 murders (three miles from Fort Benning's stockade). Even now, the Army Court of Military Review is forming an opinion which could conceivably reduce Calley's sentence, or let the man go.

And then there is the President, who above all wants military stability. Says McCauley: "All the signs point to executive clemency. The war is ending, we're getting ready to get our POWs back. I think the President would like to heal all the wounds of Vietnam. My hope is that he will release Lt. Calley sometime this Christmas."

FINAL FALL after centuries of slow decline may be at hand for one of ancient Rome's most spectacular monuments, the Colosseum. Rapidly succumbing to modern assault from auto fumes, heavy traffic vibrations and industrial pollution, the historic arena has been partially closed to protect sightseers from chunks of falling masonry. Below left, disappointed tourists on the outside anxiously looking in and, right, steel scaffolding covering the south wall. Legend in the Middle Ages had it that when the Colosseum falls, the world will fall.

'Give 'em Hell' Harry popular with masses—especially Texans

By ROBERT E. FORD
Associated Press Writer

There can't be any question: Most Texans liked Harry Truman's way of doing things—by a margin of about 3 to 1.

That is, they liked his blunt, salty talk—provided it wasn't directed against them or their buddies.

They proved it in 1948 when they gave him a margin of almost 3-1 when he ran for president against Thomas E. Dewey in one of the strangest races on record.

Truman didn't believe the polls or anything else that said defeat.

All indications were that Dewey would win easily if not by a landslide.

Harry put a train together and climbed aboard and made his famous whistle-stop, give-'em-hell speeches.

He crossed Texas in the train and by the time he left Dallas, some people betting on Dewey began to hedge.

Everywhere Truman's train stopped, he drew great crowds, while Dewey couldn't draw

When Truman got to Dallas in mid-afternoon, he descended from the train and headed for aging Burnett Field where they played Texas League baseball in those days.

Well, Harry filled that baseball park like it never had been filled before, even for the Dixie Series playoffs. The grandstand, the infield and outfield were jammed with people.

Persons who study "crowds-manship" as related to votes saw handwriting on the wall.

Anyway, Truman took Texas 750,700 votes to 252,240 for Dewey, with Strom Thurmond on the States Rights ticket getting 106,909 in that 1948 election.

Truman didn't visit Texas often, however. One trip was for the funeral of House Speaker Sam Rayburn at Bonham, a service attended by four Presidents, former Presidents or presidents-to-be. The others were Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson.

Truman made one more memorable trip to Texas and as usual he caused an uproar, particularly among persons who consider the word "hell" profane language.

This was in 1960 and it was a two-day political swing trying to bring Texas back into the Democratic corral after voters strayed twice for Eisenhower. Richard Nixon was running against John F. Kennedy that year.

In San Antonio, Truman said, "And that bird (Nixon) has the nerve to come to Texas and ask you to vote for him. And if you do it, you ought to go to hell."

Truman later said that wasn't what he said. But he wouldn't say what he believed he said. A corps of veteran newsmen all had the same quote.

Back in Washington, Truman was asked if he intended to apologize for the "go to hell" speech as some Republicans demanded.

"Tell THEM to go to hell," Truman replied, and laughed about it.

Memorial service for Mrs. Symington

WASHINGTON (AP) — A memorial service will be held Thursday for Evelyn Wadsworth Symington, wife of U.S. Sen. Stuart Symington and mother of Rep. James Symington of Missouri, who died Sunday of a heart attack. She was 69.

She was stricken after returning from the Washington Redskins-Green Bay Packers National Football Conference playoff game.

Mrs. Symington had been in good health and had recently vacationed with her husband in Florida after a three-week tour of Eastern Europe with other members of Congress.

She was the daughter of James W. Wadsworth Jr., a Republican senator and later representative from New York. Her grandfather also was a congressman from New York.

Her mother was Alice Hay, daughter of statesman and diplomat John Hay who was private secretary to President Abraham Lincoln. Hay also was a four-time ambassador and then secretary of state during the administrations of Presidents McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt.

The Symingtons had been married 48 years.

SALTA LAKE CITY (AP) — A Christmas morning litter was strewn about the living room, and a blond 20-month-old boy snoozed on the couch.

It was a typical Christmas Day scene in a typical American family setting. For the boy's father, a 45-year-old contractor, believes in polygamy and lives with two wives.

The man, who asked not to be identified, became known here as "Mr. Brown" after he appeared on a television program several weeks ago. He claimed hundreds of people are practicing polygamy in Utah.

Brown said Christmas would be a better season if there were more polygamous families.

"Plural marriage means better wives, better sweethearts and better mothers, and better husbands," he said.

"I guess there's a little more love in a polygamous family because there are more people involved."

The man said he has a third wife who no longer recognizes the marriage and a total of 17 children, some of them from his wives' previous marriages.

Only two children were home this Christmas morning in the Salt Lake City home—one from each of his two wives, who are in their 40s.

A boy 9, played in the bedroom with his Christmas toys. The other children have grown and live elsewhere.

Brown was born a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) and both he and his wives say they consider themselves faithful to true Mormon principles.

However, he and his wives have been excommunicated from the church.

Polygamy was part of Mormon doctrine until a federal law banning it was passed in 1890. The church issued a manifesto rejecting polygamy and now excommunicates polygamists.

Brown, who was excommunicated after he married his second wife, said he does not believe the manifesto came from God.

He said many of his Mormon neighbors think he's a traitor but the neighborhood seems to accept him and his family. They live in a modern cinder-block home on a quiet residential street.

An elderly Roman Catholic woman came to ask if Brown could take her to the cemetery for a visit to her late husband's grave.

"I'd sure rather have a good polygamist family in the neighborhood than one where the husband is always running around with other women," she said.

One of the wives volunteered to drive her to the cemetery.

Brown said he has had no trouble with the law but expects he might have to go to prison some day.

"The threat of prison would not stop me from living this way," he said. "The patriarchs of the Old Testament practiced it, because it is God's way."

Bob Thomas at the Movies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Film financing now comes from a variety of sources, from toy companies to Indian tribes. Perhaps it was inevitable that a band of wealthy doctors would get into the act.

A major reason for the improved health of the movie industry is the wider base of financing. In the past, film companies had to go to banks and other lending institutions to acquire the millions to make movies.

That has changed. "Sounder" was partly financed by the Mattel toy firm. "Dirty Little Billy" by the Wells, Rich, and Green advertising agency. "Tom Sawyer" by Reader's Digest.

Now comes a film called "Steel Arena." Its backers: 18 Northern California medical doctors who contributed $475,000.

The man behind "Steel Arena" is Peter Traynor, 34, a Bostonian who moved to Oakland, Calif., and founded Leverage Funding Systems.

Business mirror

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — As you peer at the busted toys and broken budgets — uptight, hung over and suffering the guilt of financial and sensual excess — take heart. Maybe it isn't all that bad.

The year may have culminated in a buying orgy, but it followed months of stern discipline that put retailers to the test. It was a year of consumer selectivity, and a year in which they asserted their rights, options, opinions.

As the consumer analysts say, it isn't just what the consumer has in his pocket that determines how much is sold. Attitude counts too. The consumer isn't entirely predictable. He's wiser; he makes his own decisions.

Check with some resort operators and they'll probably tell you that the days of the free spenders and lavish tippers are over, for the time being anyway. People may have money to spend, but they look at the price tags.

They are, in fact, spending more at resorts and on cruises than ever before. But if you think they aren't demanding more, try counting all the discounts being offered. The one-price days are gone.

It was a good year for automobiles, but if you check you'll find that imports accounted for about 15 per cent of the market, despite the dollar devaluation that put them at a disadvantage.

One explanation being offered is that most of the imports were low-priced editions, and that the big attraction for them remained those relatively low price tags.

People clearly are exercising judgment in spending. While personal income rose 4 per cent this year, consumers didn't spend that money evenly. In fact, some of it went upst.

Savings deposits at savings and loan associations soared to $33 billion, a 19 per cent one-year increase in total deposits, capped by a gain of $3.6 billion in December alone — right in the midst of the Christmas selling season.

But look at what happened to the stock market and mutual funds. Small investors refrained from committing themselves heavily to stocks. Week after week they sold more than they bought.

Redemptions of mutual funds presented serious problems for that industry, which was built on small investments and too often on big promises. Many once enthusiastic fund investors soured on fund management.

In summary, the consumer exercised his will and his judgement many times during the year, even though today he might feel that he succumbed in the final month to an old spending habit.

If you are among them, look at it this way: You were entitled to a little indiscriminate spending. And the merchant was entitled to the same.

Continuing with our series of bad plays and bids by life masters in the fall nationals we come to one by a nameless South that certainly constituted a delightful Christmas gift to his opponents.

North's two-diamond call was not the old fashioned rock crusher most players are used to but merely a good hand with length in the major suits. Actually his hand was far stronger than it might have been in the system he and his partner were using so that his only hesitation after West jammed the bidding by his five-diamond call was between five and six spades. Since his side missed two aces, the five-spade decision was certainly the correct one.

West opened the king of diamonds and shifted to the queen of clubs.

South won; led a trump to his queen and went into a trance when West showed out. He could have played a second trump and claimed but life master South was in a fog and somehow or other had credited East with a third trump. So he played an extra round of trumps and could not claim any more.

The hand was still a cinch since hearts were going to break nicely but by now, South's dream world was one of nightmares. He led a heart from dummy and after East played low, South produced the 10-spot.

East made a surprise trick with the jack and East and West had their Christmas present of a top score.
